Public Service To Notify By Radio Of Power Shortage

Britton I. Budd, president of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, today made the following statement with reference to the power supply situation:

"At least until the late spring of 1949 when the next new generating unit in our expansion program will go into service, the demands for power at times of peak load are likely to equal the total available generating capacity."

"This is a national problem and utilities throughout the country are experiencing similar conditions which have developed primarily on account of inability to install additional generating capacity during the war."

"Since the lifting of wartime restrictions, an abnormally long time has been required to obtain equipment and complete its installation. Therefore, although additional capacity is being installed as rapidly as possible, it is not expected that normal reserves will be reestablished for some time."

"Public Service Company and associated companies, Commonwealth Edison Company, Western United Gas and Electric Company, and Illinois Northern Utilities company, expect to be able to meet all demands for service except possibly during very limited periods. Occasionally, however, a combination of circumstances may result in a temporary inability to meet total demand. An example of this occurred on September 8 when for a period of about four hours the total requirements of all customers exceeded the generating capacity then available."

"The temporary shortage of September 8 was met through a pre-arranged plan under which a group of industrial and commercial customers curtailed their use of electricity. The circumstances which made it necessary September 8 have not recurred, but for customers to reduce their loads on there have been a few days since then when it appeared that it might be necessary to call on them again."

"In addition to the possibility of the recurrence of circumstances which produce unusually large demands, there is also, of course, the possibility that equipment may have to be taken out of service for emergency repairs. "In case it becomes necessary to call on all customers for immediate curtailment to meet an emergency, a program has been worked out which will provide for the sharing of the necessary load reduction."

"The problem, of course, is to contact the thousands of customers quickly. It is planned to accomplish this by the use of the radio."

"If it becomes necessary to ask all customers to curtail, radio stations will be asked to make the request. With full cooperation by all customers, it is expected that any shortage can be met without serious inconvenience to any one customer."

"When curtailment is no longer necessary, the radio will again be asked to advise all customers."

"It should be noted that shortages, if they occur, are likely to be of a short duration, prevailing only during the heaviest use of electricity. At night and on Saturdays and Sundays, the load normally drops to such an extent that generating capacity is far in excess of demand."

"This program has been developed so that customers will be asked to curtail only when and if it becomes necessary for them to do so, and for no longer periods than is absolutely necessary."

"The $400,000,000 expansion program now being carried out by Public Service and its three associated companies, will increase their generating capacity from 2,400,000 kilowatts to more than 3,000,000. This increase in capacity is sufficient to serve the normal needs of a city of about 1,000,000 people."

FRANKFORT HAS HIM, DIOGENES

The following letter was sent to Mrs. Katie Pink, postmistress at Frankfort recently, from a man named Bill Copp, of the Home Oil Company gas station located at junction of highway 6 and Burlington route, at Hastings, Nebraska:

"I am a station attendant at the above station and usually our work is quite routine even though we meet all types of people. Today however, I had the pleasure of meeting for a moment, a very pleasant and honest fellow from your town. I believe his name was Joseph T. Gallagher."

"Mr. Gallagher happened to find a wallet around the station belonging to a gentleman from Kansas, and he brought it to me in hopes I could locate the owner. As it happened the gentleman who owned the wallet returned in about three hours and was extremely relieved to find the wallet. It contained a fair sum of money and some valuable papers. He said he would certainly contact Mr. Gallagher and thank him. To some people this would be an incident involving only these few people, but I think folks in your town might like to hear about it."

"I saw 38 countries with the air force and can't help but think that only here do people take honesty so much for granted. We are all pretty lucky that there are Americans like Mr. Gallagher."

Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher live in Frankfort township on a farm.

Were Diogenes living today, he would find his honest man.

The lillies seem to continue to bloom. Mrs. Robert Doak, Joliet, writes that she has an Easter lilly with five large blossoms. She did not give the plant any attention, just planted it in the garden with other flowers and was delighted when it bloomed. Now she is wondering what to do with the new bulbs and plants.

Mrs. Elmer Cooper at Mokena, said she set her Easter lilly plant in her flower bed this spring and it grew rapidly and had four large blossoms. Any more?

ANNE L. EDWARDS AND CHARLES BURKHARDT JR. WED SATURDAY

Overflow Crowd Greeted Candidates At Republican Rally

A good many people from this territory attended the Republican rally in the American Legion hall in Joliet last Saturday evening when Governor Green was the key note speaker.

The hall was filled to overflowing. Buddy Everett's orchestra furnished music, a community sing was lead by Miss Jordan, a couple put on a splendid tap dance routine and a magician put on an entertaining act.

Gov. Dwight Green who was an interesting speaker said among other things:

"Eight years ago I came into this county as the Republican candidate for governor. I told you that if you elected me and the other Republican candidates we would establish a new regime of honesty, efficiency and economy in Springfield. I told you we would balance the state budget and live within our income, that we would perform every essential state service conscientiously and well, and that we would undertake new measures to promote the prosperity, the welfare, and the happiness of the people of Illinois."

"You did elect us, and those promises have been kept."

"Turning the calendar back to January, 1941, Gov. Green pointed out that the state treasury was almost bare when the Republicans moved into Springfield, making it necessary to make emergency appropriations to continue vital services."

"At that time, the sales tax rate was three cents," the Governor explained. "Under a peculiar Democratic law passed in 1939 which provided that the basic rate was two cents but that it should be three for the next two years. I was determined to have done with phony New Deal emergencies and to make the two cent rate a fact instead of a theory, and we did it. We cut down our budget and we lived within our income. We have been living within our income, on a balanced budget ever since."

"We have done so, despite increased costs and wartime shortages of materials and labor. We have maintained our state hospitals at a high level of efficiency and have cared for an ever increasing number of patients, now over 46,000."

"We have increased our payments to old-age pensioners, not once but several times, to enable them to meet increased living costs and to provide adequate medical care. We have instituted one of the finest and most liberal systems of aid to dependent children in America. Our public aid program has enabled practically three per cent of our population to be maintained in their own homes where otherwise they would be a charge upon their communities."

"Each general assembly since I have been governor has generously increased our state appropriations for education."

Noah Mason, candidate for reelection as congressman, lauded the 80th Congress and told the struggles it has had and of its fine record of accomplishments.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH NEWS

The Sunday School has three innovations since the beginning of October, a new lesson plan for the primary, kindergarten and nursery class. A Nursery class will be held during the worship service at 10:30 and a Men's Bible class under the joint leadership of Messrs George Steele and Milton Geuther.

A pair of altar flower vases was dedicated last Sunday in memory of Herbert Clark.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Hokanson of the Bethesda Lutheran church, east side, Chicago, sang as guest soloists in St. John's church last Sunday. They sang "Hold Thou My Hand," by Briggs as a duet and Mr. Hokanson sang "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte as a solo.

The St. John's Evangelical church in Mokena was the scene of a lovely fall wedding last Saturday evening, October 9 at seven o'clock, when Miss Anne Louise Edwards became the bride of Mr. Charles Burkhardt Jr.

The church was decorated with ferns, palms, and white gladioli, and the pastor the Rev. William Riemann officiated at the single ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Edwards and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burkhardt Sr., all of Mokena.

Miss Betty Habenicht of Orland Park, aunt of the groom, presided at the organ playing sweetheart songs as the guests were arriving, and accompanying Mr. A. E. Keisler of Mokena when he sang, "At Dawning," "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Wearing a white brocaded faille gown with a sweetheart neckline, bodice waist and a full skirt, the bride was escorted by her father. Her finger tip veil was caught by a tulle of seed pearls. She wore a string of pearls and carried a bouquet of white carnations centered with a natural orchid.

Miss Bette Edwards served her sister as maid of honor. Her gown was gold color satin with mits to match. She carried tea roses and wore a spray of the same flower in her hair. The bridesmaids were Miss Lillian Knox of Orland Park and Miss Rita Holper of Chicago. They each wore an aqua satin gown with matching mits and carried pink carnations.

William Burkhardt was his brother's best man and Walter Edwards, brother of the bride and George Habenicht of Blue Island, were ushers.

Mrs. Edwards wore a gray dress and hat with black accessories and a pink carnation corsage. The groom's mother wore burgundy colored faille dress and hat, the latter trimmed with the same color ostrich feathers. Her corsage was white carnations. The groom's grandmother Mrs. C. F. Habenicht of Orland Park, wore a blue dress with black accessories, and a black hat. Her corsage was pink carnations.

A reception was held in Saenger hall in Tinley Park for 300 guests and a buffet dinner was served and dancing was enjoyed.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Burkhardt left that same evening for a motor trip to the Smokies. Mrs. Burkhardt's going away suit was brown with matching hat and an orchid corsage. Upon their return they will go to housekeeping at 2524 New street in the city.

The groom who served three years in the service, spent 23 months overseas in the Pacific theatre. He is employed with the Public Service at Harvey.

Warn Vets Not To Let Ins. Lapse

Thousands of original National Service Life Insurance policies will expire this week, Lester R. Benston, state rehabilitation director of the American Legion, warned today.

Every month now through December 1953, many of the policies will lapse unless the veteran pays the premium for a new five-year term policy or converts his service insurance into a civilian form.

No veteran will be able to reinstate his insurance, once it has expired, without a physical examination, Benston said.

He urged all veterans whose policies have lapsed to get in touch with the nearest American Legion service officer or Veterans Administration office to protect their future rights.

The 25 percent of ex-servicemen who retained their GI insurance were complimented by Benston for their good judgment. "This government insurance is still the best protection obtainable for the veteran and his family."

Call For 882 Men From Ill. In Dec.

Colonel Paul G. Armstrong Director of Selective Service for the State of Illinois, has announced that Illinois has received a call from Major General Lewis B. Hershey, Director of Selective Service, for a total of 882 men for delivery during the month of December 1948. "It will be necessary for us to examine more than 4000 registrants," said Colonel Armstrong "to accomplish our quota." "We have been advised that the delivery of the 882 inductees must be accomplished within the first twenty days of December. No persons are going to be inducted into the armed services after December twentieth because of the holiday season."

Col. Armstrong said it will be necessary to call 4000 men for physical examination in the month of November to meet the December quota. Plans are now being laid to step up the daily quota that will be sent to induction stations between now and December to have the necessary supply of men available.

N. U. Tests Students For "Nose for News"

A "Nose for news" and other essentials of a good journalist can now be predicted in students applying for admission to a school of journalism, Northwestern University announced today.

The University's Medill School of Journalism, the only accredited school of journalism that carries on a continuing psychological study of student aptitudes and interests, has assembled a battery of tests which, it is hoped, will aid in the highly selective process of admitting superior students to the school.

Charles L. Allen, assistant dean and director of research of the Medill School, has included three widely known tests used in vocational guidance and in industry, the Strong Vocational Interest Blank, the Kuder Preference Record, and the California Test of Personality.

Because the journalist must have a good vocabulary, Prof. Allen has added to these the Seashore-Eckerson English Recognition Vocabulary Test, perfected by Prof. Robert Seashore, chairman of the Northwestern department of psychology, and Allen's own Vocabulary and Diction Test.

The latter was constructed especially for this purpose by selecting 100 words from the news stories and editorials of one New York and one Chicago paper. Preliminary testing on groups of Northwestern faculty and students resulted in a final draft of 50 words. These were validated by testing them on Northwestern psychology students and journalism students at the University of Illinois. This test proved to have the highest correlation with actual performance in journalism classes of any of the tests.

The journalist also should have keen powers of observation, the educators felt. So they added two picture observation tests, developed by Prof. Seashore. Students are given 20 seconds to analyze each picture, and then immediately are asked questions about significant items in the picture. In addition to the accuracy score, students earn "confidence" points for their degree of certainty in each instance.

By administering these tests together, the Northwestern educators are able to collect data designed to measure characteristics which, they believe, are necessary to success in the journalism field. The tests also make available to the faculty students' aptitudes and interest patterns, thus facilitating vocational counseling.

As the study continues, another personality test will be added to the battery, Prof. Allen said. In order to validate the tests further, Medill educators will follow students' performances in the years after college. Test scores can then be correlated, not only with academic standing while in school but with future success.

GAY COLORED LEAVES EASY TO PRESERVE

In the brief Autumn period when Jack Frost really goes to town colorfully daubing the landscape, many people rue the thought that all this beauty is so transitory.

Others do something about it by preserving the brilliant leaves. Throughout the land, countless thousands collect Fall flora but only a small percentage realize there is a simple process to preserve nature's treasure of fallen leaves, according to W. C. Lauck of the Davey Tree Expert Co.

The leaf-collection hobby is one that appeals to adults and youngsters alike, says the expert. In the juvenile field, it has the added importance of encouraging interest in the wonders of nature.

For those who would like to start leaf collections, Mr. Lauck advises that they obtain some paraffin and a book in which the leaves can be pasted and classified.

"It's really simple to preserve the leaves," points out Mr. Lauck. "Merely dip them into melted paraffin and hang them up to dry. Once the paraffin has cooled and hardened, get an old magazine or book and place the leaves between them to flatten them out."

In arranging the leaves in the collection book, the arborist suggests that they be grouped in "tree families." For instance, members of the oak, maple and other families should be placed together. In that way, it is easy to discern the difference in leaves and makes it easier to label them.

Adult education in the United States has grown by leaps and bounds in the last 100 years. The World Book Encyclopedia reports that one out of every four adults is engaged in some form of adult education. This gives the U. S. an adult student body of more than 20 million.

He is now a high-ranking member of the powerful Ways and Means Committee of the House.

Men like Harold Knutson, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and Joseph Martin, Speaker of the House of Representatives, have written in high praise of Mason's work in helping to reduce taxes, waste, and extravagance in Washington.

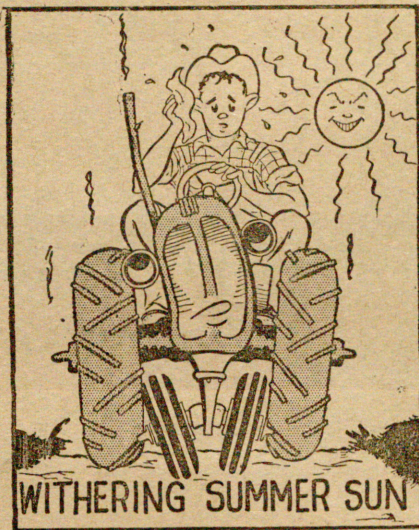

Congressman Mason has won the respect of the leaders of Agriculture and the representatives of workers for the courageous battles he has waged for farmers and laboring men, always keeping in mind the interests of the whole country.

Youngsters Can Handle Own Money

Just a nickel a week. That's all the allowance it takes to start your "small fry" learning the value of money.

As soon as your child asks for his first penny, start his education in spending, advises Mrs. Ruth Crawford Freeman, home accounts specialist, University of Illinois College of Agriculture. By giving your youngster the opportunity of making choices in use of money during his youth, you will strengthen his ability in making wise choices as an adult.

Now at the start of the school year is a good time to call a family powwow and set up the amount of the allowance for each youngster. The following four factors should be considered in deciding how much allowance Johnny, for example, should have, says Mrs. Freeman.

First, list Johnny's needs for money. Second, consider whether the family purse is large enough to take care of all of Johnny's needs and the family's other needs.

In general, a young child needs only very little buying. As boys and girls reach the age when they begin to buy school supplies, a bigger allowance is needed. And by the age of 10 to 14, when they start buying their own clothes, they need another increase in their allowance.

The third point to consider is that the allowance should be large enough to give your child an opportunity to divide it three ways—for spending, for sharing in Sunday school offerings and gifts, and for saving. Fourth, it is best to set a regular pay day for allowances.

UI Publication
Tells Care of Galvanized Roofing

Galvanized metal roofing is used on more than a third of the barns and other buildings on Illinois farms, according to Farm Adviser, C. A. Hughes. He reports that it is a durable material which, when put on right and kept in good shape, will last for many years.

But to get the best possible service from galvanized roofing, those who use it need to understand how to select it and put it on, and then how to keep it in good condition, Hughes points out. Almost half of the metal roofs now in use need some repairs. Such repairs seldom require much money or material, but they do call for a few hours of labor from time to time.

Repairs mentioned include replacing damaged nailing strips or sheets, re-nailing, tightening loose sheets, and painting to stop damage from rust.

Hughes says his office has a new circular from the University of Illinois College of Agriculture that describes the care and repair of galvanized roofs. Single copies are available upon request at his office. Ask for Circular 624, "Galvanized Roofing for Farm Buildings."

National Religious Book Week Oct. 24-31

From Oct. 24 to Oct. 31, the nation will celebrate the sixth annual Religious Book Week as a reminder that religion, our foremost liberty, must be preserved. It was announced by L. K. Bishop, Chicago area director of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Books We Live By, a 32-page list compiled by separate committees of Protestants, Catholics, and Jews, has been issued in connection with Religious Book Week, and is available for reference at any of the Chicago public libraries. It contains a list of books of interest to each of the three faiths and a fourth "good will" list of books of interest to all.

Among the books included in the lists are Peace of Mind, The Spirit of Catholicism, What Am I Doing Here, and Lace Curain. There are separate lists of children's books also included in Books We Live By.

To help celebrate Religious Book Week, the Chicago office of the American Brotherhood has color posters, book-marks and program folders available to the public.

World War II Dead Return Program Is Nearing Close

All temporary military cemeteries overseas in which have been buried World War II Armed Forces dead will be evacuated by the end of November, 1948, The Department of The Army announced September 27.

Caskets containing the remains of military personnel whose next of kin have directed their return to the United States for final burial will be held under military guard awaiting homeward bound shipping facilities. There will be also the casketed remains of 16,087 Armed Forces deceased whose next of kin have failed to return the final burial forms addressed to them by The Quartermaster General of the Army.

Brigadier General Kester L. Hastings, newly appointed Chief of The Memorial Division, Office of The Quartermaster General, announced that by September 30, 1948 The Army will have returned to the United States at the request of next of kin the remains of 81,500 individuals who died overseas in World War II. This figure, General Hastings states, will increase to approximately 113,000 by December 31. Only an additional 37,000 or a total of approximately 150,000 are expected to be brought home at the request of next of kin, General Hastings estimated. This total will be 54 percent of the recoverable remains.

The progress made in the final burial program which Congress expected might take five years will enable The Army to effect important economies by reducing the number of distribution centers through which caskets have been forwarded to next of kin. The present 12 distribution centers will be reduced to six with Schenectady, New York; Charlotte, North Carolina; Memphis, Tennessee; Ogden, Utah; Kansas City, Missouri and Philadelphia not receiving any remains after mid-November.

The final combined estimate of overseas deaths for Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard during World War II is 358,967. Of this number 275,762 were buried in temporary cemeteries. The difference, 83,205, represents remains of those lost at sea or under circumstances that made recovery impossible, such as mid-air plane explosions, ammunition dump explosions, and other such disasters. Search for recoverable remains continues.

The number of unknowns of World War II is at present 18,832. General Hastings said this figure would be reduced as the result of improved and painstaking identification procedures being carried on in overseas laboratories.

Search for 16,000 next of kin who have failed to answer letters sent to them by The Army is being carried on with the assistance of The American Red Cross through its local chapters. The Quartermaster General during the past two years has made repeated appeals to next of kin of deceased military personnel to give a forwarding address when moving, but thousands have failed to do so and cannot now be found. Unless the Army is able to locate these next of kin within a reasonable time and ascertain their desires for final burial the remains of these 16,000 military personnel will necessarily be interred overseas in permanent military cemeteries.

There will be fourteen permanent and two National Cemeteries to serve American Military Cemeteries overseas as resting places of the Armed Forces dead when the program is completed. All will be beautified similar to the eight World War I cemeteries where rest 30,907 dead of that war. Military cemeteries overseas will be under the supervision of the American Battle Monuments Commission. Burials have begun in eight of the military cemeteries. These are Cambridge, England; Henri Chapelle, Belgium; St. Laurent, Epinal, St. Avold, St. James and Draguignan, France; Nettuno, Italy and Carthage, Tunisia. The remaining military cemeteries will be established at Margraten, Holland; Hamm, Luxembourg; Neuville-en-Condroz, Belgium; Fort McKinley, Philippines and Florence, Italy. The Office of The Quartermaster General will have charge of National Cemeteries to be created at Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands and San Juan, Porto Rico.

Give pullets plenty of room—three and one-half to four square feet each—in a clean house with plenty of feeding and watering equipment.

Two New Hunting Areas Now Available

Illinois sportsmen will have the use of eight state-controlled hunting areas this fall. Two of these places are new. The state department of conservation has recently acquired the DesPlaines upland game grounds, 14 miles south of Plainfield, on route 66, and the Anderson lake waterfowl shooting area, five miles north of Browning on route 100.

Other waterfowl areas are: Rice lake, on route 25, four miles south of Banner; Woodford county area, on Spring Bay road, 12 miles south of Lacon; and Sparland area, on route 29, two miles north of Sparland.

Other upland game grounds are: Chan-O-Lakes, on route 12, two and one-half miles north of Fox Lake; Green river, five miles north of Ohio, on route 26; and Iroquois county, five miles northeast of Beaverville, near route 1.

Hunters desiring to use any of these hunting areas should write to the Division of Game Management, Department of Conservation, Room 121 State House, Springfield, for permit. The names and addresses of all members of the hunting party, the days wanted, and alternate acceptable dates, should be stated. Requests are being handled in the order they are received.

IVC Gives Valuable Aid to Students

More than 17,000 veterans on the University of Illinois campus have received some type of assistance from the Illinois Veterans commission since establishment of an office there in 1945.

Assistance to the ex-servicemen at the state university has ranged from the filling of claims for pensions, subsistence and bonus to the arranging of adequate housing and counselling on school objectives.

The University of Illinois office of IVC is a special branch set up by the commission under the title of "Student Advisement Section." All colleges in the state of Illinois are served either by members of this section on full-time or itinerant basis.

Since the establishment of the commission, its 142 offices have served more than 800,000 veterans.

Service officers of the commission have been trained and are ready to assist veterans of all wars or their dependents on matters of insurance, claims, hospitalization or other state and federal benefits. Offices are conveniently located in every county of the state.

In Cook county the IVC office is located at 9101-13 Commercial Avenue, Chicago 17, Ill.

The familiar saying "A1" originated with the famous insurance firm, Lloyd's of London. The World Book Encyclopedia states that Lloyd's rated ships according to how safe they were. If a ship was considered a good risk, Lloyd's rated it "A-1."

Lesson for October 17, 1948

YOU, friend reader, probably know less about what is in the books of Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy than any other part of the Bible. These are the sections mostly filled with laws—"Thou shalt . . . Thou shalt not." You either skip these entirely or you say to yourself, "Well, that has nothing to do with me." If so, you have been missing one of the most interesting sections of the Bible.

Some of these old laws are dead; but even a mummy can be interesting. Call them dead if you like; you still can learn a great deal about the times and the minds and the customs of those far-off days by reading the laws which governed people's daily lives.

But it is hardly fair to call them dead. Rather, they have been honorably retired. That is to say, they were admirable laws in their time and place, and God's will was learned through them.

The Living Soul of Law

THERE are two ways of looking at any law, or you might say there are two sides of every law, the inside and the outside, the soul and the body as it were. The body, the outside, is the letter of the law; the inside or soul of the law is the spirit or principle of the law.

The body of the law, like the body of a man, dies; it is not intended to live on and on. But the soul of the law (if it has one; some don't) lives forever.

Take, for instance, that law in Lev. 19:9, 10. The body of it, the letter, says: Do not be efficient in getting in your crops. Leave some wheat in the field. Leave some grapes on the vine.

Today that sounds rather stupid, on the face of it, and no good farmer would pay attention to it. But look at the spirit of that law: the wheat and

STATE BOOKMOBILE TO BE IN TINLEY ONCE A MONTH

After clearing away the windup of the community festival, the Tinley Park Recreation commission has proceeded with the news service to be made available to the community.

Through negotiations with the Illinois State Library at Springfield, complete public library facilities will be brought to Tinley Park by Bookmobile once a month for a trial period of six months.

The first visit will be Thursday October 21 from 2 to 5 p.m. The unit will be parked at the east end of the triangular Legion Park, just north of the railroad station.

The bookmobile unit is a specially designed closed truck whose interior is lined with shelves bearing approximately 2500 books arranged in recognized library fashion. Trained librarians are in attendance giving expert consultation service upon request and may be called upon to find material sought. While representative selections in fiction, travel, poetry, literature, science, history, mechanics and many others are among the stock in the Bookmobile, any desired book or books will be brought from the vast store available at the main library. Librarians will list desired materials and bring them on the next trip.

This six months trial period is absolutely free of charge, to young and old alike, and deserves a visit by all in the community. EVERYBODY VISIT THE BOOKMOBILE! WELCOME THE LIBRARIANS TO TINLEY PARK.

Regular and more complete Bookmobile service may be provided after the six month trial period by forming a library district established by local referendum under the Illinois library laws.

A library district may be established only by a majority of votes cast on the question at an election in the proposed district.

First, a petition signed by at least 100 legal voters in the proposed district requesting an election.

Second, the county Judge will then hold a hearing on the petition, determine the exact boundaries of the proposed district and call for an election on the question within 60 days.

Third, the voters decide whether or not they want the library district.

The newly established district librarian will be governed by a district board appointed by the Commissioners or Supervisors of the counties in which the library district has been formed. Taxes levied for support would be far less than the average resident pays for a magazine subscription.

A large and well supported district library can offer not only all the books a community can use but also many non-book materials. Phonograph records and record players for both children and grownups can be loaned. View masters, a modern version of the old-fashioned stereoscope with views in dazzling full color may be had. Movie projectors can be borrowed and an index to films made available.

Residents should visit the library unit Thursday, October 21 and make full use of this Big City Convenience in our midst.

ORCHARD HILL A LIVELY PLACE

The Orchard Hill kindergarten class has had a busy schedule during the first month of this school year. Under the direction of Mrs. Leslie Johnson and with the aid of many mothers, the children visited the Indian village at the railroad fair. They saw there, at first hand, Indian dances which they now interpret in their own fashion at school.

Last Friday the following mothers and grandmothers visited the class and watched the children work on Indian hats, making a miniature Indian village and a rhythm band: Mrs. A. Blue, Mrs. D. Boston, Mrs. G. Bormet, Mrs. E. Beamas, Mrs. L. Cummings, Mrs. P. Busse and Mrs. G. Phillips. They viewed pictures taken by Foreman and Moe and later all had a nice picnic lunch on the lawn.

Today with the aid of mothers, they will drive to the Municipal airport where Mr. G. Bormet, a pilot there, arranged for the class to inspect the interior of a large luxury liner, and after a visit to his hangar where they watched planes from all over the country land and take off, they had lunch in the famous Cloud room.

Mothers who drove are: Mrs. G. Bormet, Mrs. D. Boston, Mrs. L. Cummings and Mrs. Charles Schanz.

Tony Bettenhausen Recovers From Burns

Tony Bettenhausen, who has made a record in midget car racing and who suffered serious burns at an accident September 12, at Du Quoin, Ill., when his racing car caught fire, is recovering nicely.

At the time of the accident it was thought he could not be moved because of the serious burns, but after being treated at the track, the rear of their auto was converted into a bed, and his wife drove the car and brought him to St. Francis hospital in Blue Island. He returned home from the hospital last Sunday and except for a small area on the left leg, the burns have healed nicely.

Tony has said this finishes his auto racing career.

Farmers will have 22.4 bushels of corn this winter for each animal unit, the highest for the period 1927-48. In 1932, there were 22 bushels of corn per unit.

Will Stratovision Arrive? They're Working on It Now

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON.—"Is television here to stay?"

That has been the favorite crack in AM (regular broadcasting) circles for some time. Now it's been displaced by another:

"Will stratovision arrive?"

If it doesn't, say the enthusiastic stratospheric promoters, millions of people in rural areas will be unable to receive television programs for years, if ever.

What is "it"?

"The stratovision system simply puts the antennae and television transmitter in an airplane flying in lazy circles above the earth," they explain, "and the shortwave sent out from this airborne antennae blankets the earth's surface like a great inverted ice cream cone and covers an area approximately 500 miles across."

not in high, leaping loops like long-wave radio, their range is limited, just as human sight is limited. You can't see nearly as far on a level city street as you can from the top of a mountain. That parallel isn't an exact one, but it's a good rough comparison.

So television waves have to travel on a special cable underneath the ground (co-axial cable), or else leap from one high tower to another (microwave relay). And the farthest they can travel is some 35 to 50 miles. But stratovision waves come from a transmitter as high as the plane carrying the transmitter can fly, 30,000 feet, we'll say.

What about storms? Well the stratospherites say they miss most of them at that height, and anyhow, they can use more than one equipped plane, so they can shift the point of transmission of a program from one to the other and thus dodge the storm. They insist that they have already demonstrated that this is possible, that they can deliver.

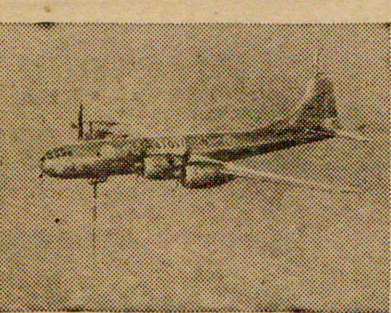

I haven't seen any of the recent tests so I don't know. Naturally the oldtimers (although the oldest oldtimers in television are still pretty new) are skeptical. After a test held recently in Zanesville, Ohio, for the benefit of newspaper and radio folk, many were still skeptical. It was admitted that conditions on the test day were not ideal by any means and it was claimed that there was interference from other stations which would be eliminated.

Variety magazine's correspondent, a keen observer of radio, said:

"Demonstration proved that the higher the altitude, the clearer and more extensive the pick-up. For all practical purposes, though, the specific, physical certainty of the underground co-axial or the thru-the-air microwave relay would seem to have the networking edge for the time being."

("Be not the first by whom the new is tried...")

The backers of the new system, Westinghouse Radio Stations, Incorporated, think differently. Their request for a commercial license was turned down by the FCC last month but they expect requirements to be altered.

Glenn Martin, whose aircraft company thought enough of the idea to work out the developments of the aviation end said:

"Flying the transmitter is one of the greatest single advances in the history of television."

I talked with one of the very earnest young men who are attempting to convert the skeptics. He seemed to have no doubts that the method equalled any other. In fact he thought that competitors would fight it because it was so good.

The whole thing is a young man's idea. He is C. E. (Chili) Nobles, 30-year-old radar expert whose work in that field was a valuable war-time contribution. He is a Texan (hence the nickname, I suppose) and the story is that the idea first struck him when he was flying a plane high above his home.

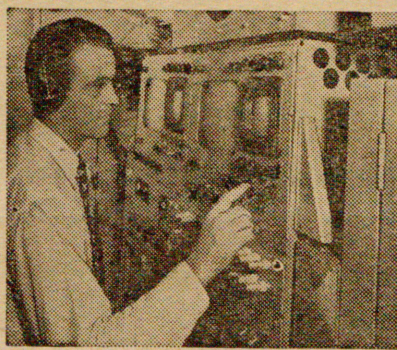

As he ran over the various figures which were in the back of his mind, the number of miles his home was from the nearest big city, the altitude and the various other calculations formulae, logarithms and assorted humorous material which an electronic engineer toys with instead of reciting limericks to himself to pass away the time, he suddenly thought:

"If I only had a television transmitter with me, and my folks had a set, and if I had some other planes for relays, they could get the same television programs New York does."

"I suppose long hours of intense work on military radar had so crowded my mind with details of its operation that I looked for radar possibilities in everything I saw," the young stratovision creator said afterward. "Radio already had proven its adaptability and value for airplane communications and in navigational aids, including blind flying. Turning these facts over mentally, I concluded that Westinghouse already had at hand basic engineering information which seemed to justify the ambitious plan."

He sold the idea to Westinghouse and Glenn Martin and they went ahead and backed his extensive, not to say expensive, experimentation.

I caught some of the enthusiasm which I know "Chili" must radiate from the young man who sat across the table from me explaining the drawings.

"Think of what stratovision would mean to the readers of your column," he said.

"We only asked for a license for one station but with more we could link up the Pacific and Atlantic coasts so that we could pick up Hollywood and New York studios (I don't know why he left out Chicago) with only eight planes flying 400 miles apart. By adding six planes to the system to cover the Northwest and Southeast we could serve 78 per cent of the population!"

And once we got the rural televisers looking, I thought, what a lot of new material would be put into the telecasts to say nothing of the greatly broadened market for television sets and advertising which would be created.

The first stratovision experiments established the surprising fact that there were lots of television sets in areas which could not possibly be reached ordinarily (by co-axial cable or microwave). At the first call for response to the test programs many letters came from such areas. Probably amateurs who had built their own sets, and perhaps erected their own antennae on some high elevation.

It would seem that the country is willing to try the Nobles experiment if it gets the chance.

The Russians, after claiming that not Marconi but a Russian invented wireless telegraphy, now are saying that the electric bulb, the flashlight, the transformer and electric welding all started in Russia. Next thing you know they'll claim an invention of the one thing which could make Ananias turn in his grave.

To get the most fun and enjoyment from bicycling, it is well to know a few simple things about buying one, says the bicycle information bureau. One thing it might be well to know is whether you have enough money to pay for it.

The biggest microscope can't see the cold germ but you can hear a couple of thousand coming in a sneeze.

The garden-type apartment is the latest thing in "tenant convenience," says the Urban Land Institute. About the only thing I was ever able to plant in an apartment was an electric light bulb but any Washington flat-dweller can raise quite a herd of buffalo moths.

Celebrate Society's 40th Anniversary

The Ladies' Aid society of the Zion Lutheran church in Tinley Park celebrated their 40th anniversary with a luncheon at their regular meeting Wednesday afternoon October 6. There were 45 members and guests present.

Mrs. Etta Voss gave a historical sketch of the organization, telling how the present pastor, Rev. Albert Budenhagen organized the society in October 1908 with eight ladies present, five of whom are still living and are members. They are Mrs. Albert Budenhagen, Mrs. F. Hartwig, Mrs. William Mancke Sr., Mrs. F. Schmiedeknecht and Mrs. F. Roeker. These each received a potted plant. All present received a lovely flower bouquet in fall colors, made of handkerchiefs.

Mrs. Harry Mager and Mrs. Fred Goebel favored with two vocal selections.

At the regular business meeting, with the president Mrs. F. Van Antwerp presiding, it was decided to sponsor a roast beef dinner in the Saenger hall on November 17.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. A. Hartwig, Mrs. Conrad Bittenhausen, Mrs. Marj Mueller, Mrs. George Wannemacher and Mrs. William Funk.

Sunday Nursery at Methodist Church

The Tinley Park Methodist church announces the opening of a nursery during Sunday morning worship service, to permit parents of young children to attend church. The children under 5 years of age, will be taken care of by women of the church who will volunteer their services. Mrs. Bert Rowe is chairman, with Mrs. Fred Shandorf assisting.

Donations of toys are solicited for the use of the little ones in the nursery. The opening date is Sunday October 17.

Fire in Tinley Coffee Shop

The Tinley Park Volunteer fire department was called to Bernice's Coffee shop in Tinley Park last Tuesday, when some gasoline exploded in the basement of the building.

Smoke filled the basement and building and it did not take long before the Fire department had everything under control. There was no serious damage.
